Quick Health Data Online announces upcoming training

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office on Women's Health is pleased to offer FREE training on the agency's online health information resource, Quick Health Data Online. The trainings are intended to introduce health sector professionals and those interested in health status to the system and to demonstrate the system's capabilities. Best of all, you can be in your own office, use your own computer, and actively participate in the training via a conference call. The training is tailored to community members, health providers, professionals, researchers, and students.

Quick Health Data Online provides county, state, regional and national data for all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and US territories and possessions. Data are available by gender, race, and ethnicity, and in certain cases, by age. The data come from a variety of national and state sources. Information is organized into a number of categories, including demographics, mortality, maternal health, reproductive health, violence, prevention, disease incidence, mental health, and access to care. Within each main category, there are numerous subcategories of data.

Trainings are currently scheduled for October 20, 22, 26, 28, and November 10, 12, and 18, 2009. If you are interested in participating in the trainings, please go to website: www.womenshealth.gov/quickhealthdata for exact times and call-in information.

Please assist us with the dissemination of this training information by forwarding it within your network.

Thank you.
