

Leading the Next Generations

Healthy Relationships Curriculum

The Leading the Next Generations Healthy Relationship Curriculum is an innovative resource founded in Native culture and teachings. The curriculum and training leads to balance of the mind, body, and spirit by creating and strengthening healthier relationships with partners, families, and communities.

The Healthy Relationships curriculum was created by the Native Wellness Institute and reviewed and field-tested by Native trainers, elders, service providers and communities throughout Indian Country. The curriculum and training combines the teachings of our Native ancestors with the realities of today's world.

Imagine tribal people and communities supporting positive, healthy relationships through access to information, role models, mentors, training and resources that build healthier, happier relationships and families.

The Native Wellness Institute's focus on culturally based healthy relationship education and promotion makes the Leading the Next Generations Healthy Relationships Curriculum the leader in Indian Country.

Attention Oregon tribes: Scholarships are available through generous sponsorship from the Oregon Department of Education and the Portland Area Indian Health Service. Please call Jillene Joseph at 503-666-7669 or email jillene@nativewellness.com for more information.
