SUBJECT: IHS and BIA provide additional information regarding FY 2014 appropriations for contract support costs in light of Ramah decision

Last week, the Indian Health Service (IHS) and the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) both issued "Dear Tribal Leader" letters that provide new information about the position the agencies will take on FY 2014 appropriations for contract support cost payments, in light of last year's Supreme Court decision in Ramah v. Salazar.

According to the June 12, 2013 IHS letter from IHS Acting Director Dr. Yvette Roubideaux, a copy of which is attached, the "difficult budget climate" has not allowed for "large increases" in the President's FY 2014 Budget, which contains a $5.8 million increase in appropriations for contract support costs. This amount will not allow for full funding of those costs. As Dr. Roubideaux states, "Fully funding the CSC need would require Congress to divert funds from other budget priorities, such as Contract Health Services, Current Services and additional staffing for newly constructed and replacement health facilities."

The budget proposed by the Administration includes “a line-item appropriation with a maximum amount of funding available for each Tribal contract or compact.” Dr. Roubideaux states that this approach was taken in order to limit the agency’s future liability for failing to pay the full CSC need for a tribal contractor. She says that this line-item appropriation for each contractor is one of the options set forth by the Supreme Court in the Ramah decision as a permissible way for the Government to limit its liability under the contracts.

Dr. Roubideaux also states that other options available to IHS to limit its liability would involve amending the Indian Self-Determination Act itself, which she notes that Tribes oppose. The line-item approach taken by IHS, she says, is an “interim solution,” and she plans to discuss this issue and seek additional input from Tribes in the various committees and working groups that meet with IHS on CSC issues.

Finally, Dr. Roubideaux’s letter set forth the two options developed by IHS to address the agency’s past liability—either the “traditional procedure” of entering negotiations with IHS in an effort to reach a negotiated agreement on a past due amount based on a careful examination of historical documents, or an “alternative procedure” that is a fast-track process by which IHS will make a “one-time, non-negotiable” settlement offer to a Tribe. The benefit of the fast-track process is that it is “simpler and less time-consuming for Tribes.” A Tribe, of course, is free to try the fast-track process and, if dissatisfied by the IHS offer, to then use the traditional negotiating process to try to settle its case.

A June 14, 2013 letter from Assistant Secretary Kevin Washburn, a copy of which is also attached, states that the BIA is following the same process for future CSC appropriations as IHS; in other words, it has submitted to Congress a line-item listing of the maximum appropriation for contract support costs for each tribal contractor. We attach here the submission made to Congress with the line-item listing for each tribal contractor.

The accompanying letter to Congress from the Interior Department states, “To balance the priorities of all tribes with the available appropriations, and in accordance with the Supreme Court decision, the Administration proposes new appropriations language for both the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Indian Health Service in FY 2014 to provide a ‘not to exceed’ amount for CSC funding for each ISDEAA contract.” The Washburn letter states that the BIA “will provide an updated table with revised ‘not to exceed’ amounts for each contract later in the process,” and it invites “technical corrections” from any tribal contractor.

United States Department of the Interior

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington, DC 20240

JUN 14 2013

Dear Tribal Leader:

I am writing to bring to your attention a recent Department of the Interior (Department) transmittal to members of Congress and the Appropriations Committees regarding matters related to Indian Affairs Contract Support Costs (CSC). For your convenience, a copy of the letter dated June 14, 2013, and the accompanying data tables are available online at www.bia.gov.

The national dialogue about CSC issues in recent months has made it clear that the demand for CSC funding has increased because of the increased costs of administering programs, services, functions, or activities assumed by tribes and tribal organizations under both Titles I (self-determination) and IV (self-governance) of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act. Further, in its June 18, 2012 ruling in Salazar v. Ramah Navajo Chapter, the United States Supreme Court held that “not to exceed” language in past appropriations was not sufficient to limit the amount of CSC funds owed to tribal contractors.

In the June 14, 2013, letter to Congress, the Departments of the Interior and of Health and Human Services propose that the amount for CSC funding for each contract in FY 2014 will not exceed the amount of funding specified in this table for each contract. The Department’s letter provides a table based on the FY 2014 budget request and an estimate of contract support costs under each Title I self-determination contract and Title IV self-governance funding agreement, relying on information available to Indian Affairs as of April 30, 2013. The letter indicates that the Department will collaborate with Congress as the Appropriations Committees move through the FY 2014 appropriations process.

Please note that the Department’s letter indicates that it will provide an updated table with revised “not to exceed” amounts for each contract later in the process. Please submit any technical corrections for analysis via email to consultation@bia.gov within the next 45 days.

We look forward to being your partner as the Federal Government and Indian Affairs continue to work with tribes and Congress to develop a balanced, long-term solution.

Sincerely,

Kevin K. Washburn
Assistant Secretary – Indian Affairs

Jun 12 2013

Dear Tribal Leader:

I am writing to provide an update on Contract Support Costs (CSC). Since my last letter on March 26, 2013, there have been some developments on the Indian Health Service (IHS) implementation of the Salazar v. Ramah Navajo Chapter Supreme Court decision. These updates involve future appropriations, as well as the settlement of Contract Disputes Act (CDA) claims by Tribes for CSC in past years and CSC processes.

Future Appropriations

In terms of appropriations, the fiscal year (FY) 2014 President's Budget Request was released and included a proposed $124 million increase for the IHS. The request included the following increases: $77 million for additional staffing for newly constructed and replacement facilities; $35 million for Contract Health Services (CHS) medical inflation costs, along with a proposal to rename the CHS program as the "Purchased/Referred Care (PRC) program; $6 million for federal and Tribal pay costs; and most important for this context, $5.8 million for an increase in CSC. Overall, the President's Budget for FY 2014 included enough deficit reduction to replace the need for sequestration while still protecting important budget priorities, including the IHS. Currently, the President's Budget Request for FY 2014 is under consideration by Congress. You can see a copy of the Congressional Justification at: http://www.ihs.gov/BudgetFormulation/index.cfm?module=dsp\_bf\_congressional.

Soon after the release of the FY 2014 President's Budget, the Administration heard from Tribes about the proposal for new appropriations language for CSC. This approach, included in the request for both the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) and the IHS, includes a line-item appropriation with a maximum amount of funding available for each Tribal contract or compact. At several events including a listening session on April 23 and a conference call on May 29, the Administration heard input from Tribes on this issue.

In Ramah, the Supreme Court determined that, for past years, the federal government owes the full CSC incurred by each Tribe under its contract, as long as the total CSC appropriation was sufficient to fund the CSC of the Tribe, even if the appropriations were insufficient to fund the costs of all Tribes. The Supreme Court recognized that the claims for unpaid CSC in prior years must proceed under the CDA and will be payable from the Judgment Fund. The decision also acknowledged that a continuing issue remains for future years because the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEAA) includes authorizing language that requires the federal government to pay each Tribe's full CSC; however, the Supreme Court also stated that Congress has historically not appropriated sufficient amounts to pay the full CSC of all Tribes. The Supreme Court identified five legislative options:

1. Amend the ISDEAA to remove the mandate to contract;
2. Amend the ISDEAA to give flexibility on the amount paid for CSC;
3. Impose a moratorium on new contracts;
4. Appropriate sufficient funds to meet the full CSC need of all Tribes;
5. Enact line-item appropriations allocating the amount of CSC for each contract.

The Administration has heard the Tribes' request for full funding for CSC, but the difficult budget climate has not allowed large increases in the budget. Given the current budget discussions in Congress, the Administration proposed one of those options as a short-term approach that is consistent with the focus on reducing the federal deficit.

The FY 2014 President's Budget reflects the challenge of funding in the difficult budget climate we currently face. Unlike other agencies that may have experienced cuts, IHS was able to request a $124 million increase. The funding needed to meet all Tribal priorities fully exceeded the proposed increase, and a balance had to be struck. The goal of the IHS is to fund as many of the top Tribal priorities as possible within the level of the request.

While the Administration recognizes that Tribes want full funding of their needs based budget, the climate in Congress right now is focused on reducing federal expenditures, not increasing them. The IHS has been very fortunate over the past years to receive increases. Fully funding the CSC need would require Congress to divert funding from other budget priorities, such as Contract Health Services, Current Services, and additional staffing for newly constructed and replacement health facilities.

I am grateful for the work of the IHS Tribal Budget Formulation Workgroup, as they have been able to make helpful recommendations on Tribal budget priorities and have even discussed prioritization of budget priorities in the event that all requests could not be funded. When we have been able to propose larger increases, we have proposed larger increases for many budget items, including CSC. When we are not able to propose large increases, we have tried to satisfy as many budget priorities as possible from the amount of the proposed increase. The Tribal Budget Formulation process has made it clear that there are many budget priorities.

The other options identified by the Supreme Court are options that we believe Tribes would not choose, although they do address the issue identified by the Supreme Court of reconciling the ISDEAA with insufficient CSC appropriations from Congress. The three other options would involve changes to the ISDEAA, which we have heard from Tribes is not desired. Regardless, the Administration considers the FY 2014 budget proposal to be an interim solution, and is interested in discussing a long term solution.

This is certainly a challenging problem that warrants further discussion. The IHS plans to discuss this issue in as many forums as possible and to consider the input of our advisory groups, such as the IHS Tribal Budget Formulation Workgroup, the Tribal Self-Governance Advisory Committee, and the Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee. Tribal leaders have suggested convening a smaller group of leadership to discuss options to present to all Tribes, and we are working out how this might occur. The IHS Tribal Budget Formulation process is still our main source of consultation input on budget priorities, and their recommendations and input are extremely important because they are representative of all Areas that have undergone a budget formulation process. In the meantime, you are welcome to submit input at any time on the topic of CSC appropriations.

CDA Claims for CSC in Past Years

In terms of CDA claims for unpaid CSC in past years, the IHS continues to make progress and to prioritize the resolution of claims presented to the Agency in the most efficient manner and through settlement wherever possible. While the IHS and Tribal attorneys have some disagreements on the interpretation of the Ramah decision and the ISDEAA, we have moved forward with a case management plan for settling all CSC claims currently on appeal to the Civilian Board of Contract Appeals.

In response to input from Tribes, the IHS also recently announced an alternative procedural option for resolving claims for unpaid CSC in past years:

- Traditional procedure. Under this option, the IHS and the Tribe will have in-depth discussions of the Tribe's claims and share documentation in an effort to reach agreement on a final amount of unpaid CSC. The benefit of this option is that the mutual exchange of information and documentation ensures the highest level of confidence in the final agreed-upon amount.
- Alternative procedure. Under this option, a Tribe can request that the IHS perform its analysis based on the agency's documentation and then make a one-time, non-negotiable offer to settle the Tribe's claims. The Tribe may choose to settle for the offered amount and resolve the claim(s). The Tribe may also choose to reject the offer and instead return to the traditional in-depth option. The benefit of this option is it is simpler and less time-consuming for Tribes.

Regardless of the process selected, the IHS will be devoting the same effort to analyzing the claims in order to ensure that the Agency consistently determines the appropriate CSC amount for each claim.

One question we have for Tribes is whether those Tribes who choose the second option should be able to "jump ahead" of other Tribes. For example, in the case management plan filed with the Board, the parties have agreed to proceed in order of the date on which a Tribe appealed its claims. We would appreciate your input on the following question: should a Tribe that elects the second option be able to move ahead more quickly, or should those appeals continue to be addressed in order of presentation, regardless of which option is chosen? The same question applies to claims still pending before the contracting officer or awarding official.

CSC Processes

The IHS has also been making improvements in our CSC implementation processes to make them more efficient, accurate, and consistent with our policy as well as consistent across the IHS Areas. As we hear more in the consultation about the appropriations and CSC claims issues, we will eventually reconvene the CSC workgroup to take another look at the IHS CSC policy to see if further changes are needed. We have now submitted all CSC Need Reports to Congress from FY 2003 to FY 2012 and welcome input on our process for developing the Need Reports in the future, as we have heard from Tribes that they want more interaction and discussion before we submit these reports to Congress. We are interested in reviewing options for these types of discussions in the context of our requirements for clearance of Congressional reports. Your thoughts on this topic are welcome.

Thank you for your input on CSC so far. I look forward to hearing more from you on the topics addressed in this update. Please send your comments to consultation@ihs.gov or to the address below:

The Honorable James Moran
Ranking Minority Member, Subcommittee on
Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies
Committee on Appropriations
House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Representative Moran:

I am writing to transmit the "Indian Affairs Contract Support Costs" table consistent with the Fiscal Year (FY) 2014 President's Budget request for Indian Affairs.

As enacted in 1975, the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEAA), Pub. L. 93-638, gave Indian tribes the authority to contract with the Federal Government to operate programs serving them and their members and to receive not less than the amount of program funding that the Secretary would have otherwise provided for the direct operation of the program. The Act was amended in 1988 to identify Contract Support Costs (CSC) and provide that CSC funds be added to the program amount. The CSC are defined as reasonable costs for activities that tribes and tribal organizations must carry out but that the Secretary either did not carry out in the direct operation of the program or that the Secretary provided from resources other than those under contract. The CSC appropriation is available to pay contract-support-cost funding only for Indian Affairs eligible activities.

The demand for CSC funding has increased because of the increased costs of administering programs, services, functions, or activities assumed by tribes and tribal organizations under both Titles I (self-determination) and IV (self-governance) of the ISDEAA. Tribes and tribal organizations use this funding to manage their ISDEAA agreements and the corresponding services in their communities.

In its June 18, 2012 ruling in Salazar v. Ramah Navajo Chapter, the United States Supreme Court held that "not to exceed" language in past appropriations was not sufficient to limit the amount of CSC funds owed to tribal contractors. The Court identified legislative remedies, ranging from amending the authorizing statute, to changing payments for contract support costs, enacting line-item appropriations for each contract, appropriating full funding for CSC. To balance the priorities of all tribes with the available appropriations, and in accordance with the Supreme Court's decision, the Administration proposes new appropriations language for both the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Indian Health Service in FY 2014 to provide a "not to exceed" amount for CSC funding for each ISDEAA contract. The enclosed "Indian Affairs FY 2014 Contract Support Cost Appropriation" table reflects the FY 2014 request for CSC and accompanies the new appropriations language. The table was prepared based on the FY 2014 budget request and an estimate of contract support costs under each Title I self-determination contract and Title IV self-governance funding agreement, relying on information available to Indian Affairs as of April 30, 2013. As the Appropriations Committees move through the FY 2014 appropriations process, the Department will provide an updated table with revised “not to exceed” amounts for each contract.

The Administration looks forward to working with tribes and Congress to develop a balanced, long-term solution. I appreciate the Committee’s continued interest in and support of the activities of the Department of the Interior and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.
