Final Training: Portland, OR August 8-9, 2012

*“Awesome Conference. Very practical.
Instructors are knowledgeable and supportive.”*

Join us in Portland, OR for this highly rated tuition-free training program. Prescription drug abuse has far reaching impacts on the health and safety of children in our tribal communities. The abuse of opioids, depressants, and stimulants can cause physical and emotional trauma that have long lasting effects. Join us to learn more about these serious issues and what you can do to increase prevention today. Take home free resources to build education and prevention efforts!

Who should attend? Law enforcement, health providers, tribal leaders, social services, housing, treatment, child protection services, and programs interested in education and prevention.

Attendees can expect to learn the signs and symptoms of opioid, depressant, and stimulant drug abuse; over-the-counter drugs of abuse, identification and early intervention for drug endangered children; the dangers of drug endangered environments; and creating next-step collaboration to build capacity for prevention.

The interactive program merges awareness with next-step responses imparting attendees with effective strength-based education and prevention strategies and resources.

“Lamar Associates training is very important to Indian Country. It will assist Indian Tribes in combatting the scourge of drug abuse.”
